Combined Annotation Dependent Depletion (CADD) is a framework that integrates multiple annotations into one metric by contrasting variants that survived natural selection with simulated mutations. C-scores strongly correlate with allelic diversity, pathogenicity of both coding and non-coding variants, and experimentally measured regulatory effects, and also highly rank causal variants within individual genome sequences.

Prepared for police officers who manage a communications unit, this manual addresses the dispatch supervisor's responsibilities, personnel issues, computer-assisted dispatch (CAD), security, and logging systems. The guide outlines steps that a new communications manager should follow on his or her first day and explores typical problems encountered. Management styles and rules for good managers are summarized. The chapter on personnel focuses on the use of civilian personnel versus sworn officers, recruiting, job classification, and the application process. Guidelines for designing a new communications center are followed by a discussion of human engineering factors that a CAD system should consider, such as keyboard placement and overhead lighting. A scenario in which the communications room is attacked provides the framework for a discussion of security. For departments without CAD, the manual explains the importance of an adequate records
