The use of technology in music and education can no longer be described as a recent development. Music learners actively engage with technology in their music making, regardless of the opportunities afforded to them in formal settings. This volume draws together critical perspectives in three overarching areas in which technology is used to support music education: music production; game technology; musical creation, experience and understanding. The fourteen chapters reflect the emerging field of the study of

Get Free Rock Band 2

technology in music
from a pedagogical
perspective.

Contributions come not only from music pedagogues but also from musicologists, composers and performers working at the forefront of the domain. The authors examine pedagogical practice in the recording studio, how

Get Free Rock Band 2

game technology
relates to musical
creation and expression, the use of technology to create and assess musical
compositions, and how technology can foster learning within the field of Special Educational Needs
(SEN). In addition, the use of technology in musical performance

Get Free Rock Band 2

is examined, with a particular focus on the current trends and the ways it might be reshaped for use within performance practice. This book will be of value to educators, practitioners, musicologists, composers and performers, as well as to scholars with an interest in the critical study of how technology is used effectively in music and music education.
