Equips the upcoming generation of addiction counselors with crucial knowledge to skillfully treat current and future addictions Grounded in leading-edge, evidence-based research, this hands-on text applies a step-by-step approach to addictions counseling. This book encompasses assessment, diagnosis, and treatment planning; case management; and relapse prevention, with an incisive focus on process addictions and co-occurring disorders. The text covers all essential topics as outlined in the gold standard SAMSHA Counselor Training Manual. Included are detailed guidelines on how to write succinct treatment plans and conduct effective client sessions; case studies; role-playing exercises; and clinical applications to assessment and diagnosis, treatment planning, and case management. Counselor Perspectives--interviews with experienced clinicians working with varied populations throughout the country--offer the wisdom of those who have been there. Critical topics unique to the book include the role of neuroscience in addiction treatment, relapse prevention, and advocacy. In addition, the text offers specific chapters on process addictions and co-occurring disorders as well as a separate chapter on multicultural counseling covering gender, racial, ethnic, sexual orientation, age, religion, and disability issues. It is also distinguished by an abundance of downloadable forms and documents, including screening instruments, treatment plan format templates, treatment plan examples, biopsychosocial assessment forms, informed consent forms, confidentiality forms, case management forms, and more. Pedagogical elements to help learners process and apply concepts include key terms, learning activities, discussion questions, recommended readings/resources and chapter summaries. Faculty aides include an instructor's manual with sample syllabi, CACREP mapping tools, test bank, and PowerPoint slides. This essential resource will be valued as a primary textbook for any course that focuses on addiction counseling and treatment. Purchase includes digital access for use on most mobile devices or computers. Key Features: Describes a variety of etiological models and how they become a means of assessing biopsychosocial risk factors Delivers step-by-step guidelines on how to write concise treatment plans and for conducting effective treatment sessions Devotes a chapter to motivational interviewing to promote willingness to change Includes cutting-edge research pertaining to neuroscience and its applications and evidence-based treatment practices Provides separate chapter on multicultural counseling and substance use disorders among people of diverse races, ethnicities, genders, class, ages, and spirituality Offers real-world insights with "Notes from the Field" feature Facilitates practical application through role play exercises, treatment technique and assessment case examples, biopsychosocial assessment guidelines, how to provide client feedback, and more Includes multiple digital downloadable tools

"The perfect handbook for the clinical supervisor." --Nancy Waite-O'Brien, director, Education and Training, Betty Ford Center "An outstanding contribution to the professional well-being of the addiction field." --Thomas McGovern, editor, Addiction Treatment Quarterly "Forever useful." --S. Beckett, education and training coordinator, National Association of Alcohol and Drug Abuse Counselors

Based on a decade of research and theory, Substance Use Disorders and Addictions examines co-occurring psychiatric disorders as the norm with substance use disorders and addictions. With more than 20 years of experience in the field as a clinician, a researcher, a program developer, and an instructor, Keith Morgen encourages a holistic approach to working with individuals, using a single case example throughout the text to encourage the sequential application of concepts to co-occurring disorders. With DSM-5 diagnostic criteria, the 2014 ACA code of ethics, and 2016 CACREP standards integrated throughout, readers will benefit from this applied and cutting-edge introduction to the field.

The book is intended for individuals who are beginning their formal studies in the field of alcohol and drug abuse counseling. Its focus on clinical concerns is related to the overwhelming increase in education requirements for individuals studying to be certified addiction counselors or licensed professional counselors. Also, among the various professions (social work, psychology, counseling, nursing, etc.) many clinicians are requesting courses that present the facts of addiction in the context of the helping professions. The book is the culmination of research and best practice guidelines from Federal, State and local governmental agencies, national organizations, and other experts in the field on substance use and abuse. Many different authors are referenced in the text to bring varied and interesting topics to ones understanding of not only the physiological consequences of substance use and abuse but also the social, psychological, and spiritual components of addiction and recovery. Section I focuses on the social, cultural and ethnic diversity in recovery concerns of addictive life styles. Chapter one explains the extent of drug use and the societal concerns of alcohol and drug abusing individuals. Chapter two explores the cultural and ethnic diversity of Hispanics, African Americans, Asians and American Indians paying attention to minority group experiences and substance abuse. Chapter three shifts from social and cultural issues to how the brain processes various chemicals. Chapter four explains pharmacologic effects of drugs and various health consequences and treatment considerations and chapter five relates drug testing to treatment effectiveness. Section II attempts to explain various special issues in recovery, Chapter six explains child and adolescent chemical abuse, the scope of the problem and the adolescent abuse and/or addiction dilemma. Chapter seven identifies the origins of HIV/AIDS, its life cycle and the various HIV groups. Also incorporated in this chapter is a discussion of Hepatitis A, B and C. Chapter eight introduces the reader to enabling and codependency, the various rules of codependency and its relationship to self-esteem. Chapter nine explores the relationship between alcohol and drug abuse and its impact on the family resilience and recovery. Attention is given to the dysfunctional concerns of growing up in an addictive family environment. Chapter ten explores co-occurring disorders and effective treatment strategies. Section III, Intervention strategies in recovery management begins with an analysis of the self-help movement and its relationship to the healing process. Chapter twelve presents a micro practice discussion of various approaches to brief therapy and Chapter thirteen presents a macro practice approach to solving behavioral health challenges.
