Sir E.A. Wallis Budge (1857-1934) is today mostly known as the author of such books as The Egyptian Book of the Dead (1895), The Gods of Egypt (1904), and An Egyptian Hieroglyphic Dictionary (1920). Born an impoverished and illegitimate child in rural Cornwall, Budge bit and clawed his way through the barriers of Victorian and Edwardian class

prejudice to a knighthood in 1920. As Keeper of Egyptian and Assyrian Antiquities in the British Museum
from 1894 to 1924, Budge's career was entwined with the great issues of his day: the rise of the European Empires in the Middle East and the decline of the Ottoman Empire; the French and British struggle to control Egypt and its antiquities; the conflicts between Ottoman and European antiquarian interests in the Ottoman province of Iraq; and the British invasion and colonization of the Sudan. Budge was both a proponent of a liberalized Christianity and a believer in the reality of the occult

world, and his books
were viewed by many as a primary source for alternative religious inspiration. More than an account of the professional conflicts
and the controversial
smuggling of antiquities for which Budge is now remembered in academic circles, this is an intriguing story of antiquities and empire - and of how one man's life was saturated with both.

Sir Ernest Alfred
Thompson Wallis
Budge (1857-1934) is an important voice from Victorian England,
whose life, publications
and achievements

continue to resonate

today. This central work

- first published in two volumes in 1920 to describe 'my three

Missions to

Mesopotamia in 1887,

1888 and 1890' and 'my

many Missions to

Egypt' - provides the modern reader with a remarkable echo of a

long-vanished world,

and the dramatic and romantic way in which archaeological finds from Egypt, Iraq, Turkey and Syria came to be treated, exhibited and understood. A compelling read for anyone with an interest in the ancient world of the Middle East, and indeed in the history of the British Museum. It is reprinted here in one volume as a companion intriguing biography,

and Mummies in (Hardinge Simpole,

"A collector, Mr Wilkinson, is always collecting. This is the nature of the beast." So says London antiquities dealer Nikos Volanakis,

who bought a statue of
the Pharaoh Akhenaten
from a smuggler

assuming that he would be able to sell it to a wealthy antiquities
collector for a ten-fold profit. When the statue is stolen from

Volanakis' gallery he decides to enlist the services of a distant cousin, the Greek-
English adventurer

Hugh Wilkinson, to get it back. Wilkinson, the son of an English father and a Cretan mother, is settled in London but running out of money. He is looking for a way to replenish his bank account that does not include sitting behind a desk while he is also considering the possibility of marriage. When Volanakis offers to pay Wilkinson half of what he paid for the statute of the Lord of Light if he recovers it, Wilkinson makes a counter-offer: he will find the the statue and return it to Volanakis, but he wants half of the much larger amount for which Volanakis plans to sell it -- which is a wonderful idea if Wilkinson can survive

Cairo, 1901. Egypt is under British occupation and the European quarter is a playground of the rich. Lord Mark Trevelyan is a rogue and confirmed bachelor who lives in the luxurious Shepheard's Hotel and makes ends meet by selling bogus Egyptian antiquities. Lady Laura
