first search algorithms are popular for CSPs. (See Section 5.2.) It is also the case that the path by which a solution is reached is irrelevant. Hence, we can also use a complete-state formulation, in which every state is a complete assignment that might or might not satisfy the constraints. Local search methods work well for this formulation.

in this book. The golden ratio gets its name from the golden rectangle, shown in Figure 1.1. The golden rectangle has the property that removing a square leaves a smaller rectangle with the same shape. $f f - 1 1 1$ Figure 1.1. The golden rectangle. Equating the aspect ratios of the rectangles gives a defining equation for ϕ : $1 \phi = \phi 1 1$.
